Dear Parents,

It is a Curriculum Day on Monday so the students will not have school. I will be sending Book-in-a-Bag and spelling homework home on Tuesday. We are just getting into the routine and it is important as we are working hard on those reading and writing strategies right now. Remember that there are many ways to practice reading and writing. I send home the worksheet to write and practice the words, but through-out the week you can practice in many ways. Also with reading it is important that they are choosing books they enjoy reading too. As the books get harder and longer it is okay if they split up pages or read some one night and then pick another book to read and then finish the book the next day. I do the same book because it builds sight words, fluency and confidence. It also helps kids to start hearing themselves reading well and they become more expressive. Learning to love reading is my goal. ☺ Thank you for helping your child be prepared for school. It is so exciting to see how many levels they have grown and the confidence they are gaining in their abilities. We will be having our 2nd Art Adventure this week. Parents come in to share about works of art that can be found at the Art Museum. Kids are able to ask question and see replicas of the art work. It is a wonderful program and the kids learn so much.

Up Coming Events:

Have a great week!
