Dear Parents,
Our Weekly Peek looks so empty this year! I guess I will have to jazz it up. 😊 This week we will be continuing to work on reviewing letter sounds and starting to work on what listening, reading independently and choosing a “just right book” looks like here in class. I will share more of this information with you at conferences. We are letting the kids get settled into school again before we begin our assessments this year. We want to have a true picture of where they are with their learning and not let the uniqueness of the year play a role. It has been fun to get to know the kids and settle in to the routines already! In first grade every child is at a different level of understanding in both reading and math. I work hard to meet them at their level and help them to develop a love for reading and math. If you do notice things at home that you want to share with me please do. We are not doing sharing the way that I have in the past, where the kids bring an item from home to share and tell about with their classmates. I will be having a daily question that we all share about. However, if your child has a big event happen at home that they would like to share about, for example a new sibling or a new puppy, feel free to send a picture through email and I will let them share with the class. We will have picture day on Tuesday of this week. Please let me know if you have questions or concerns! Together we can make this a great year!
